

The Three Bunnies (One of whom liked to dress like a duck)

Once upon a time, there were three bunnies (one of whom liked to dress like a duck Quack!). These bunnies decided to each build a house of their own; the youngest decided to make his house out of straw, because it would be easy and he'd be done in no time at all; the middle bunny (who liked to dress like a duck) made his house out of sticks, because, well, he liked sticks; the eldest bunny built his house out of bricks, because even though it would be a lot of hard work, it would be strong and safe.

The youngest bunny, having finished his house, was having a cup of tea and enjoying his new home, when along came the Big Bad Elephant.

The Big Bad Elephant saw the house made out of straw, and knocked on the door. Knock, Knock, Knock

The littlest bunny said "Who is it?"

The Elephant said "It is I, the Big Bad Elephant. Let me in, or I shall huff, and I shall puff, and I shall SNEEEEEZE your house down!"

The littlest bunny replied "I'm not going to let you in, not by the hair of my chinny-chin-chin."

Then the elephant said, "All right then." and went AAAH-AAAH-AAH-CHOOOOOO and he sneezed the house down.

The littlest bunny ran to the middle bunnies house as fast as he could and knocked on the door. Knock, Knock, Knock

The middle bunny (who liked to dress like a duck) asked "Quack?"

The littlest bunny said "Please let me in, somebody has sneezed down my house!"

He was let in, and they sat down and had a cup of tea together, when along came the Big Bad Elephant. He saw the house made of sticks and knocked on the door. Knock, Knock, Knock

The two bunnies asked "Who is it? (Quack?)"

The Big Bad Elephant said "It is I, the Big Bad Elephant. Let me in, or I shall huff, and I shall puff, and I shall SNEEEEEZE your house down!"

The bunnies said "Not by the hair of our chinny-chin-chins!"

"Wait, I don't have any hair on my chinny-chin-chin... Not by the feathers of our chinny-chin-chins!"

"Hey! I don't have any feathers on my chinny-chin-chin! Not by the hair, or feathers, on our chinny-chin-chins!"

The Big Bad Elephant replied, "Well, all right then." and he went AAAH-AAAH-AAH-CHOOOOOOOO! and sneezed the house down.

The two bunnies (one of whom liked to dress like a duck Quack) ran as fast as they could to their eldest brothers house and knocked on the door. Knock, Knock, Knock

The eldest bunny asked, "Who is it?"

The two bunnies replied "Please let us in. Somebody has sneezed down our houses!"

They were let in, and all of the bunnies sat down for a cup of tea, when along came the Big Bad Elephant. He saw the house made out of bricks and knocked on the door. Knock, Knock, Knock

The bunnies asked, "Who is it? Quack?"

The Big Bad Elephant replied, "Let me in. Or I shall huff, and I shall puff, and I shall SNEEEEEEZE your house down."

The bunnies replied "Not by the hairs, or feathers (quack) of our chinny-chin-chins!"

The Big Bad Elephant said, "Well, all right then." and he went AAAH-AAAH-AAH-CHOOOOOOOO!, but the house was still standing afterwards.

So, he knocked on the door again. Knock, Knock, Knock

The bunnies asked "What do you want?"

The Big Bad Ganesh replied, "I just wanted a tissue."

The littlest bunny felt sorry for the Big Bad Elephant, and gave him a tissue. The Big Bad Elephant held the tissue up to the end of his trunk and went PPHHHHHHHHPPPTTTTT

Afterwards, he felt better, and they all went into the house made of bricks, had tea, and became friends.

* * * * *